PASSAGE 1 THE BRITISH MENTALITY

Although I had stayed in England for over a year, it was difficult for me to understand the British mentality. Traveling to the office everyday by train, I watched people concealing their faces behind newspaper. They rarely conversed with each other, occasionally lifting their eyebrows to look at their fellow passengers. But when I started a conversation under the pretext of the weather I found many had a natural gift for gossip.

PASSAGE 4 THE GENERATION GAP

The world is undergoing a rapid change. That is, views, opinions, fashion, and even traditions are changing rapidly. The old cannot adapt themselves to these changes easily. They always talk about good old days, and grumble about the young, which leads to a generation gap. Parents always mention the problems of the young. If there is one, then, we can say that it is the old who create it. Everyone is of the opinion that the young are, after all, human beings-people just like their parents. There is only one difference between an old man and a young man: the young man has got a bright future before, him and the old one has got a lot of experience behind him.

PASSAGE 30 PETS

In most European countries pets are considered to be part of families. Parents would sooner keep pets in their houses than buy their children toys preventing them from thinking or forming independent personalities. Psychologists also suggest that children should have pets so that they can learn how to share. When compared with other children, a child who has a pet is more affectionate and helpful. However, some parents are not in favor of keeping pets in their houses due to the problems the animals may cause. I think parents who are against having pets should determine whether their comfort or their children's preference makes their sons or daughters happier.

PASSAGE 31 TV CHANNELS

Some advocate only one channel, or maximum two on TV because they state that it is really difficult to produce good programs for one, let alone for three or four or more. With a lot of channels, the standard of programs drops. The government cannot control all the programs-this means there can be a sharp increase in the amount of violence and sex on TV. What's more, the radio stations can go bankrupt. These are all their arguments. And some argue against the idea of having one channel. They think that rivalry among channels is necessary because it can produce only better programs, that is, more TV channels, better programs. You can have a lot more subjects with different topics. Everybody has got a freedom of choice and the right to learn about what is going on in other parts of the world. Well, who can decide who is right and who is wrong?

PASSAGE 32 SPIES

Although most countries employ spies/ few will ever admit that they do. Therefore it is only on the rare occasion of a spy being caught by an enemy country that the public becomes aware of what goes on behind the political scenes. Even the exchange of a captured enemy spy for one of the country's own master-spies who had been caught by an enemy country is done as secretly as possible. Early one cold December morning last year, three men dressed in heavy black overcoats got out of a small blue car that had stopped on a lonely bridge in Northern Germany. They stood on the bridge for fifteen minutes waiting and watching until they saw a motorboat draw up and stop below the bridge. Seeing three men stepped out of the boat and glanced up at the bridge, they quickly made their way down to the riverbank and the boat. No words were spoken when the six men met. A short time later the boat pulled away and three men, two in black, and one in dark gray, returned to the waiting car.

PASSAGE 33 MODERN LIFE

My grandmother was the daughter of a farmer who lived near a country town. When she was young, she used to complain that life provided her with few opportunities of meeting interesting people and offered her the chance of pursuing her education. But that was fifty years ago. We still live in the same farmhouse. We still relish the peace of the countryside and the quiet of the woods, but our life is very different from that of our grandparents. Why is this? What has made our life so different? The reason is, of course, that discoveries and inventions made since their time have immensely extended the range of our eyes and ears. One might almost claim that these inventions can bring the whole world to us in our homes.

PASSAGE 44 EYE CONTACT

The eyes themselves can convey several kinds of messages. Meeting someone's glance with your eyes is usually a sign of involvement, while looking away signals a desire to avoid contact. Most of us remember trying to avoid a question we didn't understand by glancing away from the teacher. At times like these we usually become very interested in our textbooks, fingernails, the clock - anything but the teacher's stare. Of course, the teacher always seemed to know the meaning of this nonverbal behavior and ended up picking on those of us who signaled out uncertainty.

VOCABULARY

to convey: to send

involvement: taking part, concern, interest

to signal: to show, to indicate

to end up: to finish up uncertainty: hesitation, doubt

glance: quick look

PASSAGE 45 INVENTIONS

Two factors are particularly significant in the history of inventions. One is the part played by inspiration, which can be far more vital than that of careful research. An example of this is the discovery of insulin by Frederick Banting. He knew very little about the large amount of work which had been done in the field. Nevertheless, he succeeded where other more knowledgeable experimenters failed. The other factor is chance. Alexander Fleming's discovery of Penicillin was an accident. He was cultivating bacteria, when a cell of what we now call penicillin fell in the bacteria. And this coincidence led him to his important discovery.

VOCABULARY DEFINITIONS

vital: important, urgent knowledgeable: expert, experienced to cultivate: to develop, to nurture

PASSAGE 46 MEDICAL CARE

Medical care has changed greatly since the days when the family doctor treated all family members for every type of medical problem. Today's physician is usually a specialist who treats only problems with his or her specialty. Today's specialists often work together in a large group in order to share costs. The group will buy expensive equipment for its own offices rather than use hospital facilities. The physician's office usually has a laboratory where a variety of medical tests can be done. So, unlike the family doctor, who often visited patients at home, today's doctors normally see patients in their office, where they can use specialized equipment.

VOCABULARY

a variety of: a number of

unlike: different from, contrasting

to specialize: to become a specialist

facility: pieces of equipment or services provided for a particular purpose

PASSAGE 47 WRITING VS. TELEPHONING

Most people would rather call than write because it takes less time. They place a great deal of emphasis on accomplishing things as quickly and efficiently as possible. So it is not startling that we would place a ten minute phone call to let a loved one know what is going on in our lives rather than spend an hour explaining details in a three page letter. In addition, telephoning is more convenient because there is less work involved. When using the phone, we merely dial and begin to talk. When writing a letter, however, we must find stationery, write the letter, address it, get a stamp on it, mail it, and then wait, who knows how long for reply.

VOCABULARY

startling: surprising and frightening emphasis: special or extra importance given to an activity convenient: easy, useful or suitable to accomplish: to succeed in doing something

PASSAGE 54 GREEN HOUSE EFFECT

The man made agent of climatic change is the carbon dioxide (CO₂) that pouring out of the world's chimneys in ever-increasing quantities since the industrial revolution began. And in the past few years scientists have begun to suspect that there is a second man-made source of CO₂ which may be as important as the burning of fossil fuels, namely the steady destruction of the world's great forests. Computer studies have suggested that if the concentration of CO₂ in the atmosphere were to be twice that of today's, there would be a rise of between 2 C and 3 C in average temperature. The danger is that the more the concentration of CO₂ in the atmosphere, the less sunlight escapes back into space. That is, some of the sunlight is trapped by CO₂, which acts like the glass in a greenhouse, allowing sunshine and heat to pass in but not out again. Consequently, the temperature rises.

PASSAGE 57 STRESS

Stress is a factor in all our lives. Learning to deal with stress in a positive, intelligent way is essential to good health. One way to combat stress is to get rid of it in physical activities. Anything from jogging around the neighborhood to an exercise on the dance floor can relieve stress and, surprisingly, give you more energy to come with life. Stress can also be controlled by changing your mental attitude. Learn to accept things; fighting against the unavoidable or the inevitable is useless. Learn to take one thing at a time. Rather than trying to do everything at once, deal with more important problems first, and leave the rest to another day. Learn to take your mind off yourself. Since stress is self-centered, doing something for others helps reduce it.

VOCABULARY

to deal with: to manage, to tackle, to attend to

to get rid of: to become free of, to discard

to relieve: to lessen or to end sorrow, pain etc.

inevitable: that cannot be escaped from self-centered: interested chiefly in oneself

to combat: to struggle with; to prevent

to jog: to run

attitude: manner, feelings

unavoidable: inescapable, inevitable

C. always helping the other and not thinking of oneself.
D. trying to control and change your mental attitude.
E. both trying to do too many things at one time and being interested only in oneself.

PASSAGE 58 SOCIAL STATUS

A status is a position an individual occupies in a social structure. In a sense, a status is a social address. It tells people where the individual "fits" in a society - as a mother, college professor, senior citizen, or prison inmate. Knowing a person's status —knowing that you are going to meet a judge or a janitor, a ten-year-old or a fifty-year-old -- tells you something about how that person will behave toward you and how you are expected to behave toward him or her. Misjudging status is a frequent cause of embarrassment -- as when a woman invites a man she assumes is a bachelor to an intimate dinner and discovers he is married.

VOCABULARY

to assume: to suppose

to fit: to be suitable or proper to occupy: have to misjudge: to underestimate

janitor: a doorkeeper

to discover: to learn

PASSAGE 60 BUYING TOYS

Buying toys for children can be somewhat confusing and frustrating for parents as well as for gift givers. Children can show surprising preferences in toys; a favorite is not necessarily expensive or unique or "in". Matching toys carefully to a child's age, however, can help this dilemma. Children usually fall into several different "toy - preference" age groups. Infants under eighteen months go through two stages. Before they can sit up, they enjoy toys that appeal to the senses, such as colorful mobiles, squeaky rubber toys or big chewable beads. After they can sit up, babies like "graspable" things like blocks, nesting and stacking toys, and cloth picture books. Children from eighteen months to three years (toddlers) like toys that move (as they are learning to do). Toddlers also like to use their hands.

VOCABULARY

D. a one-month-old baby prefers toys that will attract his attention.
E. a twenty-month-old child is fond of toys that he can chew

PASSAGE 61 SCHOOLING

In strictly practical terms, schooling yields three rewards, and the amount of each reward increases in proportion to the amount of schooling. First the individual who is well schooled stands the best chance of getting any job, other things being equal. Thus, the chance of unemployment is reduced. Second, the individual with a good background is the one chosen for advancement and promotion, thus enabling him or her to earn more over the long run. Third, because of rewards one and two, the educated individual has more personal freedom. Such a person will have more job opportunities from which to choose, is less threatened with unemployment, and can be freer economically because of his or her higher earning power. The decision in favor of further schooling needs to be encouraged if only for the above listed pragmatic reasons.

VOCABULARY

unemployment: joblessness	in proportion to: compared with	to yield: to give to school: to educate	pragmatic: practical rather than theoretical	reward: benefit
further: more, additional	promotion: advancement, raise	equal: the same
to reduce: to decrease	background: personal history	advancement: progress

 - takes a long time to gain.
 - does not mean that the person will have freedom.
 - provides fewer job opportunities to choose from.
 - helps one to obtain higher positions where one works.
 - decreases the amount of each reward one can get.

- If the pragmatic reasons are not one's goals.....

 - one should be encouraged to go on one's education.
 - it is not necessary for further education.
 - he can be freer economically.
 - one is less threatened with unemployment.
 - earning power of a person will rise.

PASSAGE 62 PRIMING METHOD

Did you ever have someone's name on the tip of your tongue, and yet you were unable to recall it? When this happens again, don't try to recall it. Do something else for a few minutes, and the name may pop into your head. The name is there, since you have met this person and learned his or her name. It only has to be dug out. The initial effort to recall primes the mind, but it is the subconscious activities that go to work to pry up a dim memory. Forcing yourself to recall almost never helps because it doesn't loosen your memory; it only tightens it. Students find the priming method helpful on examinations. They read over the questions before trying to answer any of them. Then they answer first the ones of which they are most confident. Meanwhile, deeper mental activities in the subconscious mind are taking place; work is being done on the more difficult questions. By the time the easier questions are answered, answers to the more difficult ones will usually begin to come into consciousness. It is often just a question of waiting for recall to be loosened up.

VOCABULARY

to loosen: to become free.

dim: dark

initial: first

to dig out: to find

subconscious: (of) mental activities that one is not aware

to tighten: to squeeze

 - A. mental activities in the subconscious mind will succeed in answering the easy questions.
 - B. they won't be able to do more difficult ones and not try to answer all of them.
 - C. priming method won't help them at all and they will be unsuccessful.
 - D. subconscious activities in the mind will work on difficult questions and make the students ready for them.
 - E. answers to more difficult questions will only remain in the subconscious mind and the result will be failure.

PASSAGE 63 FRIENDSHIP

Sheer proximity is perhaps the most decisive in determining who will become friends. Our friends are likely to live nearby. Although it is said that absence makes the heart grow fonder, it also causes friendships to fade. While relationships may be maintained in absentia by correspondence, they usually have to be reinforced by periodic visits, or they dissolve. Several researchers decided to investigate the effects of proximity on friendships. They chose an apartment complex made up of two-story buildings with five apartments to a floor. People moved into the project at random, so previous social attachments did not influence the results of the study. In interviewing the residents of the apartment complex, the researchers found that 44 percent said they were most friendly with their next-door neighbors, 22 percent saw the people who lived two doors away the most often socially, and only 10 percent said that their best friends lived as far away as down the hall. People were even less likely to be friendly with those who lived upstairs or downstairs from them.

VOCABULARY

sheer: pure, absolute

at random: without purpose

to fade: to die away

correspondence: mail, letters

previous: earlier, before

to determine: to decide, to find out

 - C. didn't find their next door neighbors friendly
 - D. were less friendly than those who lived upstairs.
 - E. were found to have almost no friends upstairs.

PASSAGE 64 LOVE

There is only one passion which satisfies man's need to unite himself with the world, and to acquire at the same time a sense of integrity and individuality, and this is love. Love is union with somebody, or something, outside oneself, under the condition of keeping the separateness and integrity of one's own self. It is an experience of sharing, of communion, which permits the full opening of one's own inner activity. The experience of love does away with the necessity of illusion. There is no need to inflate the image of the other person, or of myself, since the reality of active sharing and loving permits me to go beyond my individualized existence, and at the same time to experience myself as the bearer of the active powers which constitute the act of loving. What matters is the particular quality of loving not the object.

VOCABULARY

passion: enthusiasm, excitement

to acquire: to get, to obtain separateness: being apart

illusion: false idea or belief

bearer: owner, possessor

to do away with: to get rid of, to dispose of

 - C. the person he feels affection towards,
 - D. to instill active sharing and loving in other people.
 - E. the things or people that he directs his love towards.

PASSAGE 65 RAILWAYS

Those who welcomed the railway saw it as more than a rapid and comfortable means of transit. They actually saw it as a factor in world peace. They did not foresee that the railway would be just one more means for the rapid movement of aggressive armies. None of them foresaw that the more we are together, the more chances there are of war. Any boy or girl who is one of a large family knows that. Whenever any new invention is put forward, those for it and those against it can always find medical men to approve or condemn. The anti-railway group produced doctors who said that tunnels would be most dangerous to public health; they would produce colds, catarrhs and consumptions. But the pro-railway groups were of course able to produce equally eminent medical men to say just the opposite.

VOCABULARY

to put forward: to present

pro: for, in favor of consumption: tuberculosis

eminent: famous

catarrh: flow of liquid of the nose and throat

PASSAGE 66 THE POOR

It is commonly assumed that poor are lazy people who could work if they were willing. In fact, over 60 percent of the poor consist of children under age fourteen, elderly people over age sixty-four, and people of working age who are ill or in school. Another quarter work but do not earn enough to rise above the poverty line. This leaves less than 15 percent of the poor of working age who do not work, and the vast majority of those are the mother of young children. When it comes to work, the poor do not look as bad as their reputation, for most of them are too old, too young, too sick, or too busy caring for children to work.

 - D. people who are ill or in school.
 - E. people too young to work.

PASSAGE 67 HOMES

The institutional care we provide to our older people is a good reflection of the overall attitude of our society toward the aged. In the past few years, nursing homes have received wide attention as boring, meaningless places where people often have little else to do but wait for the end of their lives. Senile wards in mental hospitals are even worse. One of the appalling things about nursing homes has been the unwillingness of people on the outside to show real concern for what happens in these institutions. Even people who are entrusting a parent to the care of a home rarely ask about the nurse-patient ratio, about the kind of creative facilities or physical therapy equipment available, or even about the frequency of doctor's visits.

VOCABULARY

institutional: related to the (building of) organization for social welfare available: on hand, obtainable

reflection: thought to entrust: to trust somebody to safeguard somebody or something

attitude: feeling, manner

nursing homes: attention, treatment places for old people

 - D. is considered to be boring and meaningless.
 - E. can be seen in the relatives of those placed in these institutions.

PASSAGE 68 REGRESSION

Regression, one of the defense mechanisms, is withdrawal into the past. If the rejected fellow regressed in a childlike way, he would behave as a child. He might burst into tears, or pout, suck his thumb, throw things, scream, and have a tantrum. Regression calls for a return to earlier ways of handling problems. It is generally used when a person is deeply upset and cannot cope in a mature manner. Young children who have been toilet-trained and taught to drink from cups often regress and forget their training when a new baby arrives in their home. The older child does not know how to win parental affection in the new situation. Consequently the child must resort to previous methods for gaining attention and love. The result is regression.

defense: protection

withdrawal: departure, retreat

to regress: to go back

rejected: abandoned

to suck: to draw into the mouth by the use of lips

to call for: to require

PASSAGE 69 HOW TO LODGE A COMPLAINT

One of the greatest frustrations in complaining is talking to a clerk or receptionist who can't solve your problem and whose only purpose seems to be to drive you crazy. Getting mad doesn't help, for the person you're mad at probably had nothing to do with your actual problem. When complaining in person, ask for the manager or supervisor. When complaining by letter, get the name of the store manager or company president. (A librarian can help you find this information.) If you are complaining over the phone, ask for the customer-relations department. If there is none, then ask for the manager or appropriate supervisor. Or talk to the head telephone operator, who will probably know who is responsible for solving problems. Be persistent. One complaint may not get results. In that case, it may work to simply keep on complaining. This will "wear down" resistance on the other side. If you have a problem with a store, call the store two or three times every day. Chances are someone there will become fed up with you and take care of your complaint in order to be rid of you.

VOCABULARY

PASSAGE 70 DRUNK DRIVING

The majority of automobile accidents result from alcohol. A person who has drunk too much beer gets into a strange state called drunkenness. This state is marked either by an unpleasant feeling of loss of balance, or by falling asleep. Either of these problems is dangerous for drivers. On the road, a drunk driver is too dizzy to pay attention to traffic signs, and his lack of control may lead him to run a stop sign, exceed the speed limit, or swerve his car. As a result, he may either hit another car or a person. It is very likely that he will crash his car and often he will kill or injure himself or others. Therefore, the government has established stricter laws against drunk drivers.

PASSAGE 71 RAISING HOUSEPLANTS

Raising houseplants involves nearly as much care and knowledge as raising children. First, both plants and children are sensitive to their environments. For example/ a plant will grow faster and 'be much healthier if it is raised in an environment of tender, loving care. The same is true for a child, who will be happier and healthier if his parents love and nurture him. Similarly, proper care of houseplants requires a basic knowledge of plants on the part of the owner. He must know, for example, which of his plants need direct sunlight and which need to be kept in shady places, and how much water each plant requires for the best growth and appearance. Parents, too, must have a basic knowledge of their children's needs in order to provide what is necessary for the best physical and mental development.

PASSAGE 72 CLASS ACTIVITIES

Through the class activities the teacher can develop creativity in the preschool child by giving importance and value to what the child has made and by encouraging him to develop his own ideas and thoughts. For example, when the child paints a boat on the sea, the teacher could ask him what he had painted, what colors he had used and why he had painted it. In this way, not only the teacher, but also the child is evaluating and describing the product. Furthermore, if the teacher ascertains that a child is not happy with the task he has accomplished, the teacher should show him the value of the task. This will give the child security in his work and will allow him to further develop his creativity.

PASSAGE 73 HAPPINESS

Happiness means different things to different people. For example, some people believe that if they have much money or many things, they will be happy. They believe that if they are wealthy, they will be able to do everything they want, and so they will be happy. On the other hand, some people believe that money is not the only happiness. These people value their religion, or their intelligence, or their health; these make them happy. For me, happiness is closely tied to my family. I am happy if my wife, my children and I live in harmony. When all members of my family share good and sad times, and when my wife and I communicate with each other and work together, I am happy. Although the definition of happiness depends on each individual, my "wealth" of happiness is in my family.

VOCABULARY

wealthy: rich, well off

to be tied to: to be joined, to be attached to share: to divide and distribute to depend on: to be affected or determined by

PASSAGE 74 RUBBISH

If recycling of the rubbish is too complicated, then the government should consider other ways of salvaging raw materials from our rubbish, or at least putting it to better use. At the moment 90 % of our rubbish is dumped, sometimes near well-known beauty spots. In Japan they crush their rubbish, coat it in concrete and use it for making roads. In Sweden whole blocks of flats are heated by burning domestic rubbish in special incinerators, and in America they've found a way of obtaining oil and gas from rubbish. They do not waste their waste but are finding new fuels. It is time we started to think seriously about the growing shortage of raw materials in the world today and stopped this mad destruction of our environment by our throw-away society.

VOCABULARY

to recycle: to reuse

to salvage: to save, to recover

at least: no less than

to coat: to cover

incinerator: closed fireplace for burning rubbish etc.

 - D. some countries make use of rubbish in various ways.
 - E. They use rubbish to obtain gas in Sweden.

PASSAGE 75 BREATH HOLDING

With some practice and self-awareness you can catch yourself unconsciously holding your breath. The reason for the breath holding is to minimize pain, whether real or imagined. For example, when the dentist's drill bites into your tooth you almost instinctively hold your breath. Or, if you witness an accident or see a fight, you will very likely find yourself holding your breath. With self-observation you might find that you add to your own tension by holding your breath while driving, taking tests, arguing, or simply talking to someone you fear.

VOCABULARY

 - A. helps us to overcome tension
 - B. make cause death
 - C. helps us drive more carefully
 - D. increases the pain in your tooth
 - E. increases nervous strain.

PASSAGE 76 FATTY

Fats are high in calories and should only be eaten in small amounts, but they do slow down the speed at which food passes out of the stomach into the small intestine and so play an important part in staving off hunger. Truly, satisfying meals contain at least one slow-release food and some fat. But don't be tempted to eat, say, a large chunk of cheese or half an avocado pear at one sitting. Fatty foods should always be combined with carbohydrate. Potatoes are nutritious, and a valuable sources of high quality protein and fiber. They are a fast-release food, and should be eaten with some fat to slow them down. Baked jacket potatoes are best eaten with a modest put of butter or melted cheese. You can even eat a few roast potatoes or chips, provided they are cut fairly large to soak up less fat.

VOCABULARY intestine: tubes in the body through which food passes when it has left the stomach
to stave off: to stop fatty: food containing fat to satisfy: to be enough for
to soak up: to take in, to absorb

 - B. do not taste delicious
 - C. do not satisfy a person
 - D. cannot be cooked well
 - E. are very valuable

PASSAGE 77 DREAMS

Now and again I have had horrible dreams, but not enough of them to make me lose my delight in dreams. I like the idea of dreaming, of going to bed and lying still and then, by some queer magic, wandering into another kind of existence. As a child I could never understand why grownups took dreaming so calmly when they could make such a fuss about any holiday. I am mystified by people who say they never dream and appear to have no interest in the subject. It is much more astonishing than if they said they never went out for a walk. Most people do not seem to accept dreaming as part of their lives. They appear to see it as an irritating habit. I have never understood this.

VOCABULARY

horrible: awful, terrible

still: motionless, unmoving

to wander: to walk

grownup: adult

irritating: frustrating, annoying

astonishing: amazing, to be beyond belief

to lose delight in: not to enjoy anymore

 - C. a meaningless activity
 - D. an unusual habit
 - E. the most nonsense thing

PASSAGE 78 FEAR OF TOUCH

All the distance, which men create, round himself or herself are dictated by fear of the touch of the unknown. They shut themselves in houses, which no one may enter, and only there they feel some measure of security. The fear of burglars is not only the fear of being robbed, but also the fear of a sudden and unexpected clutch out of the darkness. The dislike to being touched remains with us when we go about among people; the way we move in a busy street, in restaurants, trains or busses, is governed by it. Even when we are standing next to them and are able to watch and examine them closely, we avoid actual contact if we can. The promptness with which apology is offered for an unintentional contact, the tension with which it is awaited, our violent and sometimes even physical reaction when it is not forthcoming, the antipathy and hatred we feel for the offender proves that we are dealing with a deep seated human propensity.

VOCABULARY

clutch: grasp, hold

to avoid: to stay away from unintentional: accidental, unplanned

to remain: to remain

to govern: to rule

be awaited: be accepted / be looked for propensity: tendency

promptness: speed, pace

forthcoming: about to come out

 - B. shocked by this.
 - C. disgusted by this.
 - D. surprised by this
 - E. delighted by this

PASSAGE 79 ZOOS

I must agree with you (if you are anti-zoo), that not all zoos are perfect. Of the 500 or so zoological collections in the world, a few are excellent, some are inferior and the rest are appalling. Given the premises that zoos can and should be of value scientifically, educationally, and from a conservation point of view (this serving both us and other animal life), then I feel very strongly that one should strive to make them better. I have had, ironically enough, a great many rabid opponents of zoos tell me that they would like all zoos closed down, yet the same people accept with equanimity the proliferation of safari parks, where, by and large, animals are far worse off than in the average zoo. An animal can be just as happy, just as ill-treated, in a vast area as in a small one, but the rolling vistas, the ancient, obliterate criticism, for this is the only things that these critics think the animals want.

VOCABULARY

inferior: poorer

appalling: awful, terrible, disgusting

to strive: to struggle, to do one's best rabid: narrow-minded, fanatical, extreme equanimity: calmness, self-control

obliterate: wiping out, destroying rolling vistas: progressing/ continuing view

by and large: on the whole, taking everything into consideration

premises: places, buildings

conservation: protection, saving, preservation

ironically: funnily enough, sarcastically

opponents: enemy, challenger, rival proliferation: production, increase

ill-treated: badly treated, harmed, neglected

 - A. the pleasant scenery.
 - B. rolling animals in the grass.
 - C. that animals are always happy.
 - D. the ill-treated animals.
 - E. the zoos closing down.

PASSAGE 80 WHALING

Man does not actually have to kill the last whales of a species with his own hands, as it were, to cause its disappearance. Biological extinction will quickly follow the end of commercial whaling, should that end be due to a shortage of raw material, that is, of whales. Whalers have long sought to defend their wretched trade by insisting that whales are automatically protected: as soon as they become rare, and therefore uneconomic to pursue, man will have no choice but to stop the hunting. That is a very nice theory, but it is the theory of an accountant and not of a biologist; only an accountant could apply commercial economics to complex biological systems. The reasons for its absurdity are many and varied. When the stock has been reduced below a critical level, a natural, possibly unstoppable downward spiral begins because of three main factors. Just to mention one of them, the animals lucky enough to survive the slaughter will be too scattered to locate one another in the vastness of the oceans.

VOCABULARY

to seek: to look for, to try to find

extinction: death, loss

accountant: secretarial

to scatter: to spread

vastness: bigness, hugeness, immensity

trade: buying and selling of goods; deal

species: class, type

to whale: to hunt whales

varied: diverse, different

wretched: shameful, worthless

commercial: profitable, saleable, moneymaking

absurdity: illogicality, silliness

 - D) biological
 - E) reasonable
3. One reason why the number of whales could never recover is that surviving whales will be
 - A) killed
 - B) isolated
 - C) lucky
 - D) frightened
 - E) reproductive

PASSAGE 81 A MEMORY

I awoke at two o'clock in the morning and heard weird noises coming from the animal room, scrunching sounds, interspersed with hissings and indignant sounds from Cuthbert. My first thought was that one of the larger anacondas had escaped and was making a meal off some of the other specimens. I shot out of my hammock and hastily lighted the tiny hurricane lamp, which I always kept by me at night for just emergencies. It gave little more light than an anemic glowworm, but it was better than nothing. Arming myself with a stick, I went into the animal room, I glanced round in the dim light and saw Cuthbert sitting on a tier of cages managing to look mentally defective and indignant at the same time.

VOCABULARY

weird: strange, odd

to hiss: to make the sound /s/

hurricane: storm

PASSAGE 82 CHARM

If you are fed up with people propositioning you, asking directions or even just bumping into you on the street, don't call a policeman - brush your hair. Two American psychologists have discovered that people on the street keep at least three inches farther away from an attractive woman than from an ordinary-looking one and never mutter dirty things at her or ask for help. For those unsure of their charm, the psychologists' research offers a further test: move slowly and carefully closer to a man on a crowded rush hour bus. If you are attractive, he'll look uneasily up, down and out of the window. But if he just stands there ... oh dear!

VOCABULARY

charm: attraction

to proposition: to make an immoral proposal

to mutter: to speak in a low voice to bump into: to meet by chance, to run into

PASSAGE 83 TARZAN

Tarzan is one of the few characters in fiction to have become a folk hero and although his popularity has fallen off since its peak in the 1920's, he is now said to be coming back into fashion. Yet no one anticipated that Tarzan would become a household word when the character was first introduced to the public. His creator, Edgar Rice Burroughs, had had a succession of jobs before turning to writing but they had fallen through. It was only when everything else had failed and it seemed impossible that anyone would offer him further employment that he fell back on fiction as a last resort. He wrote some stories which he did not show his wife because he was ashamed of such an unmanly occupation but when he was paid 400 dollars for the stories, he could no longer withhold the good news. It was then that he hit on the idea of Tarzan and it was Tarzan who made him a millionaire.

PASSAGE 84 TICKLE

‘Why can't people tickle themselves?’ Dr. Bernard Freedman says. It is a question that's had him stumped all his career. And now he has called on his colleagues to initiate serious research into the ticklish topic. Dr. Freedman, 77, a London physician specializing in lung diseases and allergies, written in the British Medical Journal: ‘Everyone knows that if children are tickled in the ribs they are reduced to helpless screaming laughter. Those who can recall being tickled in the ribs will know that by an identical action you cannot tickle yourself in the ribs. I have no idea why there is this difference in response between someone tickling you and trying to tickle yourself. I don't suppose doctors have ever seriously thought about it before. However, I hope that neurologists will read my comment and perhaps suggest some answers.’

PASSAGE 86 VIOLENCE ON TV

A lot of people believe that television has a harmful effect on children. A few years ago, the same criticisms were made of the cinema. But although child psychologists have spent a great deal of studying this problem, there is not much evidence that television brings about juvenile delinquency. Few people in the modern world share the views of parents a hundred years ago. In those days, writers for children carefully shunned any reference to sex in their books but had no inhibitions about including scenes of violence. These days, children are often brought up to think freely about sex but violence is discouraged. Nevertheless, television companies receive a large number of letters, every week complaining about programs with adult themes being shown at times when a few young children may be awake. Strangely enough, the parents who complain about these programs see no harm in cartoon films for children in which the villain, usually either an animal or a monster, suffers one brutal punishment after another.

VOCABULARY

monster: giant

to shun: to avoid

inhibition: embarrassment, shyness

juvenile delinquency: the young's criminal behaviour

brutal: evil, cruel, wicked

reference: mention, suggestion

PASSAGE 87 ABSENTMINDEDNESS

My absentmindedness, though constant and long-standing, has usually manifested itself in trivial ways. However, there are two incidents, which though not world-shaking, may have caused certain people to doubt my sanity. The first was when my wife asked me to take the sitting room clock to be repaired. With my two children in the car I drove into the marketplace of our little town and, clock under arm, entered the shop. Only it wasn't the right shop: it was the butcher's. My children, who always delighted in their father's affliction, watched giggling as, with my thoughts far away, I stood staring into the butcher's eyes. I had been a customer for a long time and the good man smiled in anticipation as he twirled his cleaver in his hand and I clutched my clock. This went on for several very long seconds before I realized where I was. There is no doubt I should have calmly purchased a pound of sausages, but my return to the world was too sudden, the prospect of explanation too unthinkable. I merely nodded briefly and left.

PASSAGE 91 RECYCLING

Several British papers are printed on recycled paper, and salvaged paper has long been used for making cardboard boxes. The technology involved in this is fairly simple, but some interesting new processes have been developed recently. Paper can be eaten; it is softened and sweetened in a special machine and then fed to cows. In fact, it has been found that cows fed on cardboard boxes give particularly creamy milk. Unfortunately the human stomach differs from a cow's, so it seems unlikely that we shall ever be able to read the Times at breakfast one day and eat it for breakfast the next day, but stranger things are possible.

VOCABULARY

recycled: second hand, used

process: methods, practice

to differ: to be different salvaged: saved, recovered

to soften: to make softer

PASSAGE 94 BIOLOGICAL CLOCK

It was long ago noted that different plants open and close at different times of the day. In fact, in the 19th century they used to make gardens in the shape of a clock face with different times. It was possible to tell the time just by looking at this 'flower clock'. No one really understands why flowers open and close at particular times, but recently some interesting experiments have been done. In one, flowers were placed in a laboratory in constant darkness. One might predict that those flowers, not having any information about the day, would not open, as they usually do. But in fact they continue to open as if they were in a normal garden. This suggests that they have some mysterious way of keeping time. They have, in other words, a kind of 'biological clock'.

VOCABULARY

to note: to notice, to comment on constant: continuous

mysterious: strange, puzzling

to place: to put

to predict: to guess

to suggest: to imply

to keep time: to know time

PASSAGE 95 TITANIC

On April 14, many of the sleeping passengers were awakened by a slight jolt. The ship had struck an iceberg, causing a 300-foot cut in her side, and five compartments were flooded. "Unsinkable", however, meant the ship could float if two, not five compartments were flooded with water. Ten miles away from the Titanic was another ship, the Californian, which had stopped because of ice fields and which had wired six explicit warnings to nearby ships. Unfortunately, the Titanic's wireless, a new invention on shipboard, was being employed for insignificant messages to and from the passengers. The tired wireless operator had worked long hours and impatiently told the Californian's operator to shut up and stop annoying him.

VOCABULARY

slight: unimportant, trivial

to strike: to hit

impatiently: intolerantly

to be awakened: to wake up/ get up to flood: to cover with water, to inundate

 - E. had no idea how to use the new invention

PASSAGE 96 COUNTRYSIDE

Luckily I don't live in Bath but nearly ten miles away in a village called Limpley Stoke in the Avon Valley. It seems to be normal in the countryside these days for professional people who work in the town to prefer to live in the villages; this makes the housing so expensive that the villagers and agricultural workers have to live in the cheaper accommodation in town, with the result that the farmers commute out to the farm and everyone else commutes in. Certainly there is no one in the village who could be called an old style villager. The people nearest to me include a pilot, an accountant, a British Rail manager, a retired French teacher... not a farm worker amongst them. But I don't think there is anything wrong with that - it is just that the nature of villages is changing and there is still quite a strong sense of community here.

VOCABULARY

countryside: rural area

to commute: to travel

nature: characteristics

accommodation: housing, lodging

to retire: to give up work, to stop working community: condition of sharing; all the people living in an area

PASSAGE 97 THE FIRST SIGNS OF LIFE

About a billion years after the earth had formed, the first signs of life appeared. Three billion years elapsed before creatures became complex enough to leave fossils their descendants could recognize and learn from. These were shelled creatures called trilobites, followed by jawless fish, the first vertebrates. During the Devonian period, great upheavals occurred in the earth's crust, resulting in the formation of mountains and in the ebb and flow of oceans. In the aftermath, beds of mud rich in organic matter nourished vegetation, and insects, scorpions, and spiders appeared. Next developed the amphibians, descendants of fish that had crawled out of fresh water.

VOCABULARY

creature: being, living thing

to elapse: to pass

vertebrate: having a backbone

to recognize: to know

to occur: to happen

crust: outer layer, top coating

PASSAGE 98 ACID RAIN

Acid rain is now a familiar problem in the industrialized countries in Europe. Gasses like sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxide are produced by power stations and cars. The gasses dissolve in rainwater, and this makes the acid rain, which damages trees, rivers and streams. Acid rain is also capable of dissolving some rocks and buildings made of soft rock, such as limestone, are particularly affected. The acid rain attacks the rock, and so carvings and statues are eroded much more quickly. Scientists estimate the rate of wear to be about a millimeter of stone every twelve years. That's enough to have caused some of the ancient carvings to become seriously damaged already.

VOCABULARY

to dissolve: to melt

carving: statue, monument

wear: erosion, friction

to affect: to influence

to damage: to harm

statue: figure in wood, stone, bronze, etc

to estimate: to guess

to erode: to wear

EXERCISES

 - A. it is too early to take actions against acid rains.
 - B. serious harm had already been done to some ancient carvings.
 - C. acid rain is not a problem to be taken seriously.
 - D. there is still time for ancient statues to be eroded.
 - E. scientists should not be alarmed unnecessarily.

PASSAGE 99 BIRDS' NAVIGATIONAL ABILITY

So far all attempts to relate the bird's navigational ability to electric forces and magnetic activity have failed. Magnets, and minute radio transmitters, attached to the bird's body, do not interrupt or influence migration. Radar beams bombarding the bird invisibly have no known effect. Rotation of migrants in covered cages during transport by car or plane does not confuse them on release. One look at the celestial clues, their sky compass, and the really expert long-distance birds are away in the correct direction. Birds are not proved to carry a magnetic compass.

VOCABULARY

attempts: effort, endeavor

rotation: regular change

to influence: to have an effect on clue : hint, evidence

compass: device showing the north

cage: barred enclosure

minute: little, small, tiny

beam: ray

release: freeing, letting go navigational: related to the act of determining the course /route

celestial: relating to space/sky

invisibly: unnoticeable

to bombard: to attack

READING COMPREHENSION

1. The main topic of the passage is
 - A. the navigational ability of birds throughout the ages.
 - B. how electric forces and magnets do not affect a bird's orientation.
 - C. the bombardment of radar beams
 - D. the way the birds look at the celestial clues
 - E. radio transmitters and compasses.
2. The magnets placed on birds
 - A. interrupt the migration of birds.
 - B. act as a compass.
 - C. have no effect at all.
 - D. act as transmitters.
 - E. confuse the birds.
3. The assumptions about birds' navigational ability have failed because
 - A. radar beams affected the rotation of migrants.
 - B. they can only be confused if they are kept in a car or plane.
 - C. they are not affected by outside influence in finding their way.
 - D. radio transmitters show the birds how to find their way.
 - E. covered cages are not used for the rotation of migrants.

PASSAGE 100 TOLERANCE

Lack of tolerance is an important problem of our age. People have been so intolerant of each other that even trivial matters may spark serious arguments. Living conditions can be said to compel people to spend most of their time concentrating on their business or their personal affairs. This may deprive people of exchanging their ideas with others or trying to understand different people. However, it doesn't seem impossible to form a tolerant society. The thing we should do first is to take up social activities to require that we share more with other people.

VOCABULARY

intolerant: impatient

to exchange: to swap

trivial: insignificant

to deprive: to take away, to deny

age: era, epoch

to take up: to begin

to spark: to start, to kindle

to compel: to force

- C. social activities can contribute to forming a tolerant society.
- D. it doesn't seem possible to form a tolerant" society owing to the problems in our age.
- E. intolerant people should spend most of their time on their own.

PASSAGE 101 AN UNPLEASANT ENCOUNTER

Ten years before, Paul and I had been friends and allies, but the friendship had somewhat soured and thinned since. Nor had either of us been best pleased when each had discovered that the other was planning a journey, and a book, about the British coast. It was too close a coincidence for comfort. Paul was working his way round clockwise by train and on foot, while I was going counterclockwise by sea. At Brighton the two plots intersected briefly and uneasily aboard Gosfield Maid.

VOCABULARY

ally: friend, partner

to thin: to weaken

clockwise: (moving) in the direction taken by the hands of a clock

counterclockwise: (moving) in the direction opposite to that taken by the hands of a clock

PASSAGE 102 A PASSAGE TO INDIA

It's worth seeing "A Passage to India" for two reasons: the photography and the performance of Dame Peggy Ashcroft as Mrs. Moore, the wise, kind old lady who goes to India to see her son. The heroine is the girl who travels with her and accuses a young Indian doctor of rape. The climax of the film is the court case where she finally admits that he is innocent. If you are attracted by Indian history, then this film is for you. It happens to give a good idea of what it was like under British colonial rule. But, above all, it is an artistic film beautifully directed by David Lean, It is full of quiet imagery, best shown in the erotic Hindu statues that so frighten the heroine, as compared with the solid, heavy sculpture of Queen Victoria outside the local court.

VOCABULARY

wise: intelligent, clever

heroine: leading actress

case: legal action, suit

imagery: images

sculpture: statue, monument

solid: hard, concrete

climax: event of greatest interest

PASSAGE 103 THE MAGIC OF TOUCH

Infants usually satisfy this very basic need in the course of an ordinary day spent with their parents. However, if a baby is neglected or even mistreated by being deprived of touch, his development will suffer on all levels-physical, intellectual and emotional. Some children have even been known to die from this lack of tactile stimulation; it is thought by many doctors that many unexplained "deaths" are directly related to lack of touch and its various consequences. Children given out for adoption at a tender age and placed in poorly run orphanages, children brought up by unaffectionate parents, and children whose parents touch them only to beat them-all types of children run the risk of never reaching their potential as fully developed adults.

VOCABULARY

infant: baby

to satisfy: to meet, to fulfill

in the course of: during, throughout tender age: young age

to be deprived of: to be without

to mistreat: to abuse, to maltreat

 - B. feel better than the ones who get it
 - C. could become successful adults
 - D. need more toys than the other babies
 - E. might even lose their lives

PASSAGE 104 THE ENVIRONMENTAL DETERIORATION

The deterioration of the earth's environment is the result of the impact of each individual on the environment multiplied by the number of individuals. Suppose you could choose any lifestyle you wished, you could, for example, choose to be a Buddhist monk or nun of certain sects. You would be forbidden to have money and be pious. You could own your begging bowl, a razor, a needle and thread, and that is all, your presence on earth would cause very little deterioration of the environment. On the other hand, you could choose to be an American millionaire. You might own several polluting factories and have a half dozen children - all eventually with their own houses, cars, and polluting factories. It is obvious that then, they would contribute much more to environmental deterioration than the Buddhist monk or nun.

VOCABULARY

monk: priest

pious: religious

eventually: finally

to contribute : to add to

nun: holy woman

to beg: to ask

impact: effect, shock, blow

to multiply: to increase, to reproduce

 - B. the more he pollutes the environment
 - C. he produces more trash
 - D. his life becomes more luxurious
 - E. more parts of the earth are safe from pollution

PASSAGE 105 THE BICYCLE

[My mother] was a magician at making her money last longer. That December, with Christmas approaching, she was out to work and Doris was in the kitchen when I barged into her bedroom one afternoon in search of a safety pin. Since her bedroom opened onto a community hallway, she kept the door locked, but needing the pin, I took the key from its hiding place, unlocked the door, and stepped in. Standing against the wall was a big, black bicycle with balloon tires. I recognized it instantly. It was the same second-hand bike I'd been admiring in a Baltimore shop window. I'd even asked about the price. It was horrendous. Something like $15. Somehow my mother had scraped together enough for a down payment and meant to surprise me with the bicycle on Christmas morning.

VOCABULARY

magician: wizard, conjurer

to barge into : to enter, to make one's way in instantly: at once, immediately

horrendous: terrible, awful

PASSAGE 106 THE OLD FISHERMAN

I had walked along the river many times since meeting the fisherman that day in winter, but I did not see him again until spring. It was late afternoon, and I had bicycled to a point along the river about a mile downstream from where we had met hoping to find a deserted spot to draw a picture. I found a niche in the sloping floodwall and started drawing a junk moored not far from me. Half an hour passed, and just as I finished the drawing, I heard someone calling my Chinese name. I looked down to see Old Ding scrambling up the floodwall, his boat anchored behind him. I noticed that he limped badly, and when he got up close I could see that one of his legs was shorter than the other and set at an odd angle. Such was his balance and skill in the boats that I only saw his deformity when he came ashore.

VOCABULARY

to desert: to leave, abandon odd : strange

to limp: to walk lamely

deformity: abnormality, defect

to moor: to make (a boat, ship etc) secure to (ground or buoys) by means of cables etc., to anchor

PASSAGE 107 WHITE LIE

The most frequent motive [for telling a white lie] was to save face. Lying of this sort is often given the approving label of tact, and is used when it would be unkind to be honest but dishonest to be kind. Sometimes a face-saving lie prevents embarrassment for the recipient. The second most frequent motivation for lying was to avoid tension or conflict... Sometimes it seems worthwhile to tell a little lie to prevent a large conflict. You might, for example, compliment a friend's bad work, not so much for your friend's sake but to prevent the hassle that would result if you told the truth. The fifth and last motive was to achieve personal power. Turning down a last-minute request for a date by claiming you're busy can be one way to put yourself in a one-up position.

VOCABULARY

worthwhile: meaningful, useful to turn down: to refuse, to reject

conflict: argument, quarrel

PASSAGE 108 WHALE HUNTING

Over a hundred years ago, when Melville wrote his famous novel 'Moby Dick', hunting whales was a dangerous and sometimes fatal business, now, in spite of their size, whales are no longer an even match for men using helicopters, radar and explosive harpoons. As a result, some species, such as the giant blue whale, are on the verge of becoming extinct. Although some countries gave up whaling several years ago, there was no international agreement forbidding it until recently, in spite of the fact that alternatives to the whale products used in oils, cosmetics and candies were already in existence. The whale is not the only species fighting for survival. In the United States alone, conservationists have estimated that over a hundred kinds of animals, fish and birds will disappear before the end of the century unless action is taken to protect them. Although governments in many countries have done a great deal to control hunting and fishing for sport and have set up game reserves and bird sanctuaries where the species can brood safely in their natural surroundings, the number in danger is still increasing.

PASSAGE 109 THE CASTLE

On the coast of California, on top of a mountain, stands an enormous castle which looks as if it has been lifted out of the Middle Ages and laid on the site. In fact the castle, called San Simeon, was built for the American newspaper proprietor, William Randolph Hearst but it is furnished with objects dating from different historical periods, which were transported from Europe. It took thirty years to build the castle and even then it was not completed. Throughout this time, over a hundred workmen were permanently employed on its site and the architect Julia Morgan, was continually obliged to change its design, as often as Hearst changed his mind. Rooms and whole floors were constructed but then had to be knocked down and rebuilt to please him. Agents were set all over Europe to find works of art to decorate the castle. Old ceilings and fireplaces, furniture, paintings and statues were purchased and shipped to America. An enormous number of objects were bought but many of them could not be used and had to be stored in warehouses, some of them not even unpacked.

VOCABULARY

to lay: to put

to oblige: to force

to ship: to transport

PASSAGE 110 BRAIN

The human brain contains, I am told, 10 thousand million cells and each of these may have a thousand connections. Such enormous numbers used to daunt us and cause to dismiss the possibility of making a machine with human-like ability, but now that we have grown accustomed to advancing at such a pace we can be less sure. Quite soon, in only 10 or 20 years perhaps we will be able to assemble a machine as complex as the human brain, and if we can we will. It may then take us a long time to render it intelligent by loading in the right software or by altering the architecture but that too will happen. I think it certain that in decades, not centuries, machines of silicon will arise first to rival and then surpass their human progenitors.

VOCABULARY

to daunt: to scare, to intimidate

pace: speed

to load: to put in, to fill, to pack

to rival: to compete, to vie decade: a period of ten years

to alter: to change

to surpass: to excel, to exceed progenitors: ancestor

to assemble: to put together

to render: to make, to cause to be to grow accustomed: to become used to

to advance: to move forward, to progress

to dismiss: to set aside, to think no more of software: program essential to the operation of computers

4. I began my standards of hospitality, offering them my pale, cold face when their music grew louder, when they began laughing among themselves and didn't take the trouble to explain their jokes to me.
5. His first formal education was received in the reading school and at six years old he progressed to his father's grammar school, where he quickly all his contemporaries.

READING COMPREHENSION

1. Now the complexity of human brain
 - A.makes it impossible for us to create intelligent machines.
 - B.causes us to dismiss the possibility of making intelligent computers.
 - C.leads to our uncertainty about the ability of the machines.
 - D.does not discourage us to make machines with human like ability
 - E.frightens us and we feel we can't achieve such a thing.
2. It is pointed out in the passage that machines with human-like ability
 - A.are likely to be made in the near future
 - B.have almost no possibility of being made
 - C.are very difficult to assemble
 - D.need complex software
 - E.move faster than human beings
3. It is suggested that in the long run human beings
 - A.can rival intelligent machines and defeat them
 - B.will be able to alter the appearance of the computers
 - C.will be beaten by the machines they create
 - D.should use silicon to make efficient machines
 - E.can put as many cells in the machines as there are in the human brain.
